

College Attendance Patterns* of Alabama 2009 College-Bound Seniors Who Took the AP®, PSAT® or SAT®

The College Board collaborated with the National Student Clearinghouse to match test takers who graduated from Alabama high schools in 2009 against the Clearinghouse's database of college enrollment. The first set of charts below (blue) shows the total number of Alabama test takers enrolled in one of the more than 3,300 post-secondary institutions nationwide that participate in the Clearinghouse and the breakdown of that college enrollment total by gender. The second set of charts (green) shows the number of test takers enrolled in college who attend an institution within Alabama versus outside the state and the in-state/out-of-state breakdown by gender.

Through its low-cost educational research service, StudentTracker, the Clearinghouse can enable any state to track college enrollment for all of its high school graduates (not just those who took the SAT). To request additional information on the Clearinghouse and its StudentTracker for high schools service, contact Bill Clendaniel at 703-969-2921 or bclendaniel@aasa.org. The Clearinghouse, a non-profit organization, is the nation's trusted source for post-secondary and secondary student degree, diploma and enrollment data. Data are provided regularly by more than 3,300 participating colleges and universities that enroll over 92% of all U.S. college students.

Further statistics on AP®, PSAT® and SAT® test takers, such as college enrollment by race/ethnicity or type of institution attended (two-year, four-year, public, private), are available by contacting your College Board Regional Office representative. The College Board is a not-for-profit membership association whose mission is to connect students to college success and opportunity. Founded in 1900, the association is composed of more than 5,700 schools, colleges, universities, and other educational organizations. Each year, the College Board serves seven million students and their parents, 23,000 high schools, and 3,800 colleges through major programs and services in college admissions, guidance, assessment, financial aid, enrollment, and teaching and learning. Among its best-known programs are the SAT®, the PSAT/NMSQT®, and the Advanced Placement Program® (AP®). The College Board is committed to the principles of excellence and equity, and that commitment is embodied in all of its programs, services, activities, and concerns.
